Restaurants reopen indoor seating
Some businesses await return of regulars

By Brianna Taggart
Staff Writer

The smell of coffee, eggs and bacon wafts around the dining room as chatter and laughter fill the space. Vehicles roll into the parking lot and servers make their way back and forth helping customers.

This is a scene restaurants have had to put on the backburner. However, it was brought back to life last Monday, Jan. 11, when restaurants in Glencoe and around Minnesota were given the green light to re-open indoor seating at 50 percent capacity.

“There’s been many hours where we’ve sat (in those booths) and looked out at the empty parking lot, the lights are off and there’s to-go containers laying all over the place, and it’s depressing looking out that window day after day,” Bump’s Family Restaurant co-owner Mike

McGuire said. “So when you do have lights on, music on, phone ringing, people in here and cars in the parking lot, it’s motivating and uplifting.”

Happy owners, happy customers

Bump’s joined other Glencoe restaurants last Monday, Jan. 11, when it opened its doors to the public with limited capacity.

A maximum capacity of 150 people, plexiglass separating booths and a mask requirement for people walking in the lobby sets the scene now at the business located right off Highway 212.

Owners McGuire and Eileen Popelka are just happy to have customers back, and apparently the gratitude goes both ways.

“We’re so thrilled to be open, and we make sure we thank everybody that comes in here,” McGuire said. “The funny thing is, they’re thanking us for being open, because they’re able to get out of the house and go do something. I think they’re as happy and grateful that we’re open as we are to see them.”

They said they’re excited to see their regulars, who “feel like family,” and joke with them over a cup of coffee again.

Gert & Erma’s owner Laurie McCleskey is also ready to see customers inside again.

“We’re just hanging in there and seeing our regulars returning,” McCleskey said.

With a new capacity of about 20 people in the front room and 15 in the large room in the back, the hardest part is just keeping people sepa-

Demolition, cleanup

A crew from Rickert Excavating began demolition of the former Sam’s Tire shop and office on North Chandler Avenue earlier this month and expects to complete the site cleanup this week. Fire destroyed the shop earlier this fall. It was traced to a battery pack charging in workspace behind the office, said Jeremy Geis, owner of the shop. Sam’s Tire relocated to 1231 Ford Ave. N.

Council split on workshops,
committee meetings

Mayor Voss
mulling hybrid approach

In his first two meetings, it has become apparent to Ryan Voss the city council is divided on some issues. The Glencoe mayor is working to assuage those differences.

Voss cast three tie-breaking votes in his first meeting, more than his predecessor typically cast in a month. But at a workshop last Monday, Jan. 11, the council was split on whether to return to workshops or return to a system of committee meetings. About the only thing the five councilors agreed on is the meetings – committee meetings and workshops alike – should be recorded and available for public consumption via the city’s website.

City Administrator Mark Larson told councilors at the workshop the committee system dates back to 1990.

After the meeting, Voss noted the gulf between councilors and thought aloud about how to find a solution all five councilors could support. He likes the idea of discussing issues in a less formal setting of a workshop but also recognizes there are times when a recommendation from a committee provides the direction city staff wants and needs to bring to the next council business meeting.

Voss is considering returning to a committee system, possibly with finance and personnel committees when the issue is appropriate. He also likes the flexibility of a workshop to discuss topics as needed.

The city council holds business meetings on the first and third Mondays of each month. Workshops have been scheduled, when necessary, on the second and sometimes fourth Mondays of each month.

City starts McLeod County’s process for north complex

Commission sets public hearing on lot split

By John Mueller
Editor

With the McLeod County Government Center soon to open for business, the plans for what to do with the north complex began taking shape Thursday when the Glencoe Planning Commission scheduled a public hearing on the county’s request to split the 10.4-acre parcel on North Hennepin Avenue into two pieces. It plans to sell the southern half of the property. The public hearing will be held Thursday, Feb. 11, 7:05 p.m.

The county’s plan is to retain ownership of the north half of the property. It previously served as the McLeod County Highway Office and County Shop Area, according to City Administrator Mark Larson. The facility has most recently served the public health nursing staff. The offices currently housed at the north complex include auditor-treasurer, assessor and recorder.

The city is working with its contract engineer, Short Elliott Hendrickson (SEH), to determine the appropriate easement for public services to be retained on the property, Larson said.

City staff is also recommending the county retain the right-of-way for 23rd Street on the south side of the proposed plat. The street was identified in the late-1960s as the corridor for the installation of the McLeod County’s North Complex hosts offices that include the license bureau, county auditor, assessor, treasurer and recorder. The county plans to sell the facility on North Hennepin Avenue. Last week, the Glencoe Planning Commission scheduled a public hearing on a lot split of the two portions of the approximately 10.4 acre site.

Crash at Highway 212 and Dairy Avenue sends five to two different hospitals

A crash involving a Chevrolet pickup and an ambulance at the intersection of Highway 212 and Dairy Avenue Thursday, Jan. 14, sent five people to the hospital, all with non-life-threatening injuries.

The crash occurred at 5:40 p.m. at the intersection of Highway 212 and Dairy Avenue east of Glencoe, according to the Minnesota State Patrol crash report. It occurred when a Chevy Silverado driven by Daymien Christophe Sponsel, 20, and an Allina ambulance on a non-emergency transport crashed in the intersection. The pickup was heading north on Dairy Avenue. The ambulance was heading east on Highway 212, according to the Minnesota State Patrol crash report. The crash included the intersection for a couple hours.

Besides Sponsel, passengers in the Silverado included Gillian Aubre Berthiaume, 18, and an infant boy.

Casey James Smith, 24, drove the ambulance. He was not injured in the crash. Richard Dean Howk, 74, and Kaitlyn Ashley Peacock, 21, were passengers in the ambulance. Sponsel and his passengers were transported to Ridgeview Medical Center in Waconia. The ambulance crew and passenger were transported to Glencoe Regional Health.

committee as well as citizens. The committee would make a recommendation to the city council. Other council members could attend committee meetings. To be determined would be whether or not a councilor not serving on the committee would be allowed to offer input at the committee meeting or be asked to wait until the city council’s business meeting to avoid usurping committee members.

Two-plus years ago, the city switched to workshops for committee meetings in an attempt to mollify councilors who felt their voices weren’t being heard during committee meetings. But Voss has heard there are times staff isn’t exactly certain how the city council wants to proceed coming out of a workshop. The council can’t vote formally during a workshop. Without formal votes, its members can reach consensus on issues. Voss likes the idea of a recommendation to council when one is warranted.

Staff needs direction from the city council to operate efficiently, said Councilor Paul Lemke.

There was a difference of opinion whether councilors not assigned to a committee could offer opinions during a committee meeting. Councilor Cory Neid favors workshops. “If you weren’t on it (the committee), your voice didn’t matter,” Neid said.

Councilor Allen Robeck indicated support for workshops.

Councilor Sue Olson supported committee meetings, but doesn’t want the council publicly airing its dirty laundry in public meetings. Olson said the council works best when it works together. Voss’ part of a council member’s duty to the public is to be unified.

Larson plans to research how other city councils handle committees and workshops and report back to the council at an upcoming meeting.

north trunk sanitary sewer line. This line would retain maximum depth of the utility from the waste water treatment facility at Seventh Street and Vinton Avenue, Larson said.

Commissioner Doug Krueger of Glencoe, the county board chairperson, said the county eventually plans to sell both parcels at the north campus as well as the land currently used for the McLeod County Health and Human Services building along Ford Avenue, a facility that encompasses two city lots. The sale of the HHS facility would likely include the building, a structure that reportedly needs significant repairs. Krueger informally estimated razing the building would cost about $100,000.

The important thing is to get those properties back on the tax rolls,” Krueger said.

Krueger was not certain if proceeds from the sale of the land can be used to reduce the amount of the $12-plus million the county spent on the new government center. The county board is expected to discuss the sale of the properties at an upcoming meeting.

rated, McCleskey said. It’s difficult to do that because of how the space is set up.

She is seeing her afternoon crowd coming back though.

“Hopefully it will go back to what it was,” McCleskey said.

Regulars returning

McCleskey is slowly starting to see people return to Gert & Erma’s and it’s mainly the afternoon crowd of business people she’s seeing the most. A lot of the morning customers tend to be “older folks” who are being more weary about coming back, McCleskey said.

“I know it’s tough and it’s hard for people,” McCleskey continued. “The light’s at the end of the tunnel, and we’ll get there.”

Subway, just off of Highway 212 in Glencoe, is also facing slow business according to franchisee Glenn Hussong. With a new capacity of 35 people, his business is down 5 percent from pre-pandemic times.

“The reaction is mixed,” Hussong said about the business’ slow first week back to indoor dining. “It’s always a struggle to get the word out.”

The owners from the three businesses said it’s also hard to gauge why business is slow right now, because the winter months are the slowest time of the year anyway.

“How much of it is just that time of year and how much of it is people not coming in from the pandemic?” McCleskey asked.

“If we get through February, I’ll be more confident (indoor seating) will stick around,” Hussong said.

McGuire and Popelka have June circled on the calendar.

“But here we are, middle of January, plowing through it like everybody else,” McGuire said. “This has been a very hard hit industry.”

Lasting changes

McGuire and Popelka chalk up their lasting business to their employees, who have all been hired back and been dubbed the “COVID crew,” and customers in surrounding areas for being so supportive.

They’ve been listening to feedback and are planning on keeping the plexiglass around since customers like the privacy it offers them in the booths. They’re also going to keep delivering food.

Gert & Erma’s will continue offering daily specials, which it started before the second indoor seating shutdown Nov. 20. McCleskey was also excited to introduce some additional healthier options for people with New Year’s resolutions they want to stick with in the hopes of attracting more customers.

“It’s kind of like opening a new business in a way, because you have to learn all these new things,” McGuire said.

Bump’s Family Restaurant owners Eileen Popelka (left) and Mike McGuire have owned the restaurant just off Highway 212 for 20 years. They said they wouldn’t have been able to open its indoor seating to half capacity without the support of their employees and customers. “We’ll keep moving ahead,” Popelka said.

Sign of an opening forthcoming

Workers from Indigo Signworks installed the signs on the new Dollar General store along Highway 212 at South Fifth Avenue in Brownton Thursday, Jan. 14.

Staff began moving equipment into the 9,100 square-foot store Monday with an expected opening sometime in the next week.

GSL Knowledge Bowl team dominates virtual meet, takes first in 12-team field

By Brianna Taggart
Staff Writer

Glencoe-Silver Lake hosted a virtual Knowledge Bowl meet for 12 schools Saturday, Jan. 16, and came out on top by nabbing all three varsity places.

“Scores were very close across the board and a good time was had by all,” Co-Head Coach Eric Anderson said.

Hutchinson, Holy Family Catholic, Lester Prairie,

Renville County West, Lac qui Parle Valley, Dawson-Boyd, Marshall, Murray County Central, Willmar, Russell Tyler Ruthton and Kerkhoven Murdock Sunburg all joined the meet on a platform called “Discord.”

GSL’s gold team came in first place with 58.5 points. The purple team came in second place with 54 points and the black team came in third place with 53 points.

The gold team consisted of Kobe Boozikee, Riley Schuth, Aaron Ward and Devin Forcier. The purple team consisted of Co-captain Paul Sievert, Nathan Warner, Austin Brewton and Zach Reichow. The black team consisted of Co-captain Kayla Reichow, Eli Kuehn, Allie Gronlund and Elida Roskamp.

Fifteen varsity teams and 10 JV teams participated in the meet.

Lucas Brelje, Brooklyn

Kasella and Anna Sievert led the Panthers’ JV team to third place with 36 points. The team followed behind Dawson-Boyd’s first place of 44 points and Holy Family Catholic blue team’s second place of 42 points.

Lucas Brelje, Brooklyn Kasella and Anna Sievert helped.

GSL will go head-to-head in its next Knowledge Bowl virtual meet Saturday, Jan. 23, at 9 a.m.

Stewart City Council finally approves pay hike for current EMS assistant

By Brianna Taggart
Staff Writer

For months, Stewart EMS assistant Carol Nelson has been asking the city council for additional pay for extra meetings she’s had to attend through McLeod County Health since last spring.

The city council finally agreed to a solution at its latest meeting, Jan. 11.

In addition to her regular pay, Nelson will now be paid a flat rate of $200 for the meetings during 2021 after Councilor Kevin Klucas brought this resolution to the council.

“I put it in there because we did not have a pay set,” Klucas said. “It used to be $300. I was thinking half that, but I would go for $200.”

They’ll also pay her mileage for the meetings, but the meetings have been through Zoom since last spring.

Klucas made the motion and Councilor Curt Glaeser seconded it. The motion passed unanimously.

Increasing health insurance premiums

The city council also approved to increase the city’s monthly health insurance premiums for its employees from $500 to $550.

“To keep our employees happy, I think we should do an increase,” Klucas said.

This will amount to a total increase of $2400 in 2021.

Klucas made the motion and Councilor James Eitel seconded it. The increase passed 3-2 with Klucas, Eitel and Peirce in favor of the increase and Councilors Carol Altrichter and Curt Glaeser opposing the increase.

Klucas made an original motion to increase it to $575 that failed 2-3. Klucas and Eitel were in favor of it, but Altrichter, Glaeser and Peirce voted against it. Glaeser said that increase was too high and hadn’t been accounted for in the 2021 levy.

In other news, the Stewart City Council also:

- Stayed in open session for Public Works employee Michael Hansen’s six-month probation review. The council gave him a score of 33 points and he gave himself 28 points. Anything above 30 meets the city council’s expectations. “You voted me higher than myself so I must be doing something right,” Hansen joked. “It was an excellent review,” Mayor Jason Peirce said.

- Approved to extend without an increase Tim Gennrich’s current rent contract on the 22.5 acres of property just off Yankee Avenue. His contract for $150 per acre was set to expire after the 2021 crop year, but the council unanimously voted to extend it to 2026. Gennrich will now facilitate installation of about 4,000 feet of drainage tile and will pay all costs of materials and installation by the fall of 2022. “I don’t see any reason to not go with (it),” Peirce said. “It would benefit both parties with the extension of his contract. The city would benefit and Tim would benefit as well.”

- Accepted a donation of $6,689.51 to Stewart Fire Department from Collins Township. The funds were addressed to cover personal protection equipment (PPE) and the AED defibrillator. The defibrillator has already been paid for, so Klucas made the motion to use the money for remaining PPE. Glaeser seconded it and the donation passed 5-0.

- Approved the hiring of Neil Meierhofer as a grant writer for $600 to write a FEMA Grant for the Stewart Fire Department. Glaeser made the motion, Councilor James Eitel seconded it and it passed 5-0.

Short comp. plan survey asks people their likes, dislikes, ideas for improving Glencoe

City will offer longer, detailed survey later this month

As part of the initial steps in creating a comprehensive plan, the steering committee formulating the proposal is looking for input on people’s thoughts on Glencoe.

The committee posted on the city’s website three questions intended to start conversation on improving the community. The brief survey asks participants their likes, dislikes and ideas for improving the community to orient the plan’s vision and its work, according to the survey.

The survey asks people their name and email address. The email address will not be published. A longer, comprehensive survey that will help orient the details of recommendations is coming at the end of January.

Your thoughts

The survey on the city’s website – www.glencoeemn.org/glencoe-comprehensive-plan-input-needed/ – asks:

- What do you like the most about living or working in Glencoe?
- What do you not like about living or working in Glencoe? What are some issues we should address?

- What ideas do you have for making Glencoe a better place to live, work in or visit?

Watching history

Our view: Bring back the old Republican Party

Today, Jan. 20, Joe Biden will be inaugurated as president of the United States. It is one of the important events of the day in our country.

Without court-accepted proof his election is illegitimate, we should accept that reality. A person can't be found guilty of a wrongdoing without tangible, real proof, not just something we want to believe based on our ideals or what we have been told to believe. There is also another important question on the table many Americans, and people in Glencoe and McLeod County are pondering – what should the Republican Party do in the wake of the Trump presidency and the historic rioting most believe he incited Jan. 6?

As a community newspaper, we prefer to opine on local, regional issues. But the future of our country is too important to ignore based on the scale of what we have all witnessed.

We hope the Republican Party will return to its conservative, family-oriented values of putting people first, of limited government, promoting opportunities and potential people can earn and protecting Americans regardless of their history. We hope the GOP will remember its belief in personal responsibility and the sanctity of all life.

Most of all, we hope the Republican Party, a party ripped apart by the unproven claims unkept promises and self-interest of a narcissist, can heal, come together, and return to its core values. We hope it will be a party willing to work with, not against, people to attain the best possible America.

We also hope President Biden and the Democrats who hold power in Congress will govern wisely, govern from the ideological middle, and work with their GOP colleagues to compromise. The Democratic Party will have trouble retaining power if it refuses to govern from the ideological middle.

Our country must soon address a balance between its needs, its wants and the ability to find a balance with what it can afford. We must address fiscal sanity, the ability to pay for wants and needs. We must eventually face our responsibilities and our federal deficit.

It will take time to achieve such lofty ideals. It is a noble endeavor, one our state lawmakers should work to achieve as well. We must govern on conscience and not on tribalism. With no proof accepted by a court, our new voice in Washington, Rep. Michelle Fischbach voted against accepting the outcome of voters in Arizona and Pennsylvania and supported the failed baseless attempt of the president to retain power. She declined requests to explain her position that has no place in the traditional GOP.

We want the Republicans to return to their traditional core values and the days when compromise was not a dirty word. We hope that's not too much to ask. If it is, we all must accept responsibility for it.

Back to school: A solid 'A'

It's good to see children in the Glencoe-Silver Lake School District back in school this week.

Elementary-schoolers are enjoying in-person learning and junior-senior high students are in a hybrid learning model. This is both a positive step for students academically and socially. We applaud the GSL School District for making it happen.

But the return can't be maintained unless the facility is safe and properly managed to keep it safe. Students and staff must also diligently follow protocols in and out of school to keep the learning moving forward.

We'd also encourage people to remember that safe environment must include the teaching staff and the families of the district's teachers and staff and their families, especially at a time when substitute teachers and paraprofessionals are in short supply.

Welcome back.

Letter to the editor

He says Glennie's opinion not well researched or factual

To the editor,

I have generally appreciated Rich Glennie's past articles, which seemed well researched and provided facts. However last week's letter was devoid of both.

Rich claims that those who believe Trump won the election are "delusional," when in fact, the real delusion is that Biden actually won by an astounding 14 million more votes than Obama received in 2012. Keep in mind that while Trump was doing rallies averaging 25,000 attendees, Biden hid in his basement and any rallies he held were embarrassingly poorly attended.

One America News just reported that several analyses of the presidential election documents almost 4 million fraudulent votes cast for Biden in the swing states (www.oann.com).

Consider President Trump was well ahead in all the swing states until vote counting was abruptly suspended. The next morning huge dumps of Biden votes came from large Democrat-controlled cities, providing just enough votes for Biden to win in all these states. Several statistical analyses have been done showing this is an impossibility, unless there was massive fraud.

I have signed a statement with 58 GOP representatives condemning the violence in Washington D.C. and last summer, whereas Democrats were mostly silent during last summer's violence.

While there may have been some Trump supporters who entered the Capitol unlawfully, The Epoch Times and OAN News have reported that John Sullivan, who is a supporter of BLM and Antifa, was arrested when he was caught on video instigating violence on Capitol Hill Jan. 6 and admitted he posed as a Trump supporter. A thorough investigation should be done.

Now I would like to address a primary reason for the hatred and vitriol from Democrat leaders towards President Trump. Big tech, along with their billionaire / millionaire Democrat donors support a globalist agenda. This globalist agenda, under the Obama / Biden administration, transferred millions of U.S. jobs overseas to countries like China in order to use cheap slave labor for economic gain.

President Trump's "America First" agenda opposed this and transferred millions of jobs back to the U.S. for Americans. For instance, China made almost 100 percent of our generic drugs (source: CBS News). Trump brought jobs back to the U.S., seriously reducing the profits for the billionaire globalists. This was one of the primary reasons for their hatred of President Trump.

The Biden administration intends to open the transfer of U.S. jobs overseas to appease their rich supporters. The globalist agenda is how Joe Biden and his son Hunter (allegedly) made millions of dollars from the criminal financial scams with Ukraine, Russia and China.

This is the primary reason Congresswoman Marjorie Taylor Greene (R-GA) has announced she will introduce "Articles of Impeachment" the day after Biden is inaugurated.

The Biden administration also plans to open our borders to illegal immigration for cheap labor, giving free healthcare, welfare, etc. This will again bring in large amounts of crime, sex trafficking, and public health issues. We need legal immigration, but we must stop the exploitation of illegals.

We need to realize that Democrat lawmakers are being influenced by communist / Marxist sympathizers like Sen. Bernie Sanders and Congresswoman AOC, who support Venezuela's communist government policies.

Finally, to those who are traditional Democrat voters, your party has left you and has become the Democrat Socialist Party. It's time you leave the Democrat Party as well.

One of Biden's toughest jobs: Unite a polarized America

By Lee H. Hamilton

If the months since the November elections have shown us anything, it's that the U.S. is more deeply divided than we've experienced in a very long time. This has been building at least since the 1990s, starting in Congress and ultimately coming to be reflected in a polarized electorate.

It's reached the point where, rather than take pleasure in the success of a politician elected to the presidency, you have to keep your fingers crossed on his behalf.

For starters, we now have a Congress – and electorate – divided along multiple fault lines. There are, of course, the partisan differences on the complex challenges that beset this country – climate change, economic growth, the pandemic, policing and racial justice, our policies toward China and Russia. Political groups with opinions on these and other issues are more sophisticated, more active, more insistent, and more aggressive in trying to shape the public dialogue than ever before. Each side tends to be suspicious of the other, viewing their adversaries not just as wrong, but as attacking the national security interests of the country.

Now in the mix, though, we also have the divisions stoked by President Trump, whose desperation to hold onto power has led him and his followers to traffic in conspiracy theories lacking any evidence and to reject the norms, principles, and institutions we've relied on for centuries to build this nation. There now seem to be two Republican parties in Congress and in the country at large: one that is interested in enabling and appealing to people who reject constitutional democracy, and one that is willing to stand up for it.

What divides us

This is exacerbated by our splintered media and social media universe, our rural/urban/suburban divide, our regional and racial differences, and even ideological differences that were once about policy but today are as much about lifestyle and community preferences as anything else. You get the impression that many Republicans and Democrats – Americans all – live in different worlds today, gravitating toward separate houses of worship, schools, neighborhoods, bars and restaurants, media outlets, movies and television shows. I've even run across people of both parties who don't want their children to marry someone of the other party.

These are not entirely new issues, but they've become sharply more painful. The stark, no-prisoners divisions in our country make the life of our elected leaders – the people we choose to move our country forward – overwhelmingly challenging. In short, the greater the polarization, the tougher it is to build consensus and solve our problems, even though if you talk to ordinary Americans, they tend to prefer cooperation and bipartisan solutions—though even that has been fraying in recent years.

A bipartisan approach

Every indication is that President-elect Biden identifies himself as a moderate and plans to govern from the center or a bit to its left. His cabinet choices so far have been from the deep pool of centrist Democrats, people with expertise and experience. He believes he can advance his goals through bi-

Carol Axt, 85, of Hutchinson

Carol Edna (Brinkman) Axt, 85, of Hutchinson, formerly of Glencoe, passed away Tuesday, Jan. 12, at Ecumen Pines Assisted Living in Hutchinson.

A funeral service was held Monday, Jan. 18, 11 a.m., at First Evangelical Lutheran Church in Glencoe, with interment following at the church cemetery.

Pastor Daniel Welch was the officiating clergy.

Yvonne Schuette was the organist and soloist Kevin Axt performed “The Lord’s Prayer.”

“Rock of Ages” and “How Great Thou Art” were the congregational hymns.

Carol’s grandchildren – Nicholas Axt, Christopher Axt, Elizabeth Anderson and Zachary Radunz – were the casket-bearers.

Carol Edna Axt was born

Carol Axt

Aug. 22, 1935, in Glencoe. She was the daughter of Art and Ella (Meyer) Brinkman. Carol was baptized as an infant Sept. 15, 1935, and later was confirmed in her faith as a youth May 15, 1949, both by Rev. Alfred Streufert at First Evangelical Lutheran Church in Glencoe. Her confirmation verse was Psalm 27:4. She received her education in Glencoe, graduating with the Glencoe High School Class of 1953.

On Nov. 27, 1954, Rev. A. H. Fellwock united Carol and Darwin Axt in marriage at First Evangelical Lutheran Church in Glencoe. Carol and Darwin made their home in Glencoe. After Darwin passed away, Carol made her home in Richmond and Hutchinson. Their marriage was blessed with two children, Kevin and Jilann. Carol and Darwin shared over 39 years of marriage until Darwin passed away Dec. 31, 1993.

Mrs. Axt worked at Green Giant in Glencoe and 3M

Company in Hutchinson. After 30 years at 3M, she retired in January 1991. Carol was a member of First Evangelical Lutheran Church in Glencoe. She was also a member of the Hutchinson American Legion Auxiliary Post No. 96.

Carol enjoyed bingo, pull tabs, solitaire, jigsaw puzzles, reading and decorating for Christmas. Mrs. Axt loved to watch the Minnesota Twins, the Vikings and a devout watcher of Days of our Lives. Carol also enjoyed being with the family dogs. Family was very important to her and she treasured the time spent with them and her friends.

Carol passed away Tuesday, Jan. 12, at Ecumen Pines Assisted Living in Hutchinson, at the age of 85 years, 4 months and 21 days. Blessed be her memory.

U of M Extension selects McLeod County students as 4-H ambassadors

Rachel Visser and Allison Wright have been chosen as Minnesota 4-H agriculture ambassadors from McLeod County.

They’re just two of the many students from across the state who have been selected for this position. These ambassadors are encouraged by the University of Minnesota Extension to share their 4-H and agriculture stories to the public during statewide agriculture events, according to a statement by the extension.

The group will have their training this spring with leadership training and education to follow. It’s likely this will be done through virtual meetings.

Brian McNeill, a University of Minnesota Extension educator in 4-H and youth development, is one of the educators leading the 4-H Agriculture Ambassador program.

“Our goal is to have young people be the voice of 4-H and agriculture,” McNeill said, adding the ambassadors come from varied backgrounds.

Some raise livestock, while others are knowledgeable about corn and soybean production or vegetable gardening, according to McNeill.

“We wanted youth to have both experiences so when they go out and talk to commodity groups, they can be a voice for 4-H in an agriculture setting,” McNeill said.

People can visit www.extension.umn.edu or contact Darcy Cole, Extension educator, at dacole@umn.edu or 320-484-4305.

partisanship and cooperation, and he’s certainly spent a lifetime in the game and has friends on both sides of the aisle. His political instincts are strong. Democrats’ tenuous hold on both the House and the Senate may help him on this front, giving strength to moderates in both parties who are willing to sit down together in the interests of governing the country effectively.

To be sure, there are plenty of forces working against bipartisanship. Many Democrats will be eager to reverse the policies of the last four years and will argue for jamming through whatever they can accomplish. Many Republicans will see political advantage in either peddling the fake narrative that Biden’s win was illegitimate or reprising the rejectionist stance taken by minority leader Mitch McConnell when Barack Obama became president.

But with Congress’s divisions mirroring the country’s, maybe there’s also room for hope. If a core of legislators of both parties are willing to work with the Biden administration, find common ground, and pass legislation that makes the country better, then perhaps Washington can actually set an example that helps a reeling nation heal.

Weather Corner

By Jake Yurek

We’ll finally see some winter like low temperatures this week as a bout of cold air moves into the area.

Forecasting weather this winter has been a very hit-and-miss endeavor. Our biggest snowfalls were originally forecast as a light 1 to 2 inches and they turned out to be 6-plus inches. Each time a big storm has been forecast, it’s fizzled the day of. That was the case last week when Monday. I forecast we were only going to get a coating of snow with high wind. Then, a day or two before, the forecast models said we were going to get 6-plus inches and a blizzard. Then the storm hits just like forecast on Monday.

The point of this story is, be wary of any winter storm forecast well in advance. I bring it up because we do have a fairly good size storm taking aim at the upper Midwest for late Saturday into Sunday. Temperatures will be well cold enough for all snow, but there is a lot of question as to who will see it. Right now, the track is bringing it right to us so it’ll be something to watch. Could be some fairly decent snowfall totals for wherever it decides to go.

Temperatures will remain warm early in the week with a blast of cold air late Thursday. Low temperatures will dip into below-zero territory with highs having a hard time climbing out of the single digits Friday. Any snow we get will be very light and fluffy, so if we get any wind over the weekend there could be some travel issues... stay tuned.

I don’t trust the weekend forecast, so there’s no point in looking at the extended this week.

Have a great week everyone. Bundle up, Friday.

Ma dobry weekendem

Mit dobry vikend

Wednesday night: Lows, 22-28; clear.
Thursday: Highs, 24-30, lows, -3 to 3; clear.
Friday: Highs, 6-14 , lows, -6 to 0; clear.
Saturday: Highs, 14-20, lows, 6-12; clouds / snow late.
Sunday: Highs, 18-24, snow.

Weather Quiz: Does our warm January mean we’ll pay the price with a cold spring?

Last week’s question: Why does lake-effect snow dump so much in certain areas?

Answer to last week’s question: Lake-effect snow piles up quickly because of how light it is. Very cold temperatures will blow over open water and create snow bands/squalls of very dry/fluffy snow, which piles up quickly. It’s not uncommon for lake effect snow to be measured in feet not inches.

Remember: I make the forecast, not the weather.

McLeod County preparing COVID-19 vaccination plan

As a registered COVID-19 vaccine provider through the Minnesota Department of Health, McLeod County Public Health has received an initial shipment of vaccine that is for emergency medical services (EMS) staff, individuals giving vaccinations, and people working at COVID-19 community testing sites.

Right now, people eligible to receive the COVID-19 vaccine are being notified by their employer, assisted living or skilled nursing facility where they live. Once the information is available, McLeod County Public Health will provide information on future priority groups and how they will be notified when they can receive the vaccine.

Ultimately, all Minnesotans will have an opportunity to be vaccinated. However, it won't happen all at once. The vaccine is currently not available to the general public. There's not a so-called list Minnesotans need to get on to receive the vaccine, said Berit Spors, director of McLeod County Public Health. Since Phase 1A is based on employment and place of residence, people eligible for vaccination within this category will be contacted by their employer or the facility where they live to let them know when the vaccine is available to them.

In later phases, vaccines will be available at settings like your pharmacy or primary care provider, and people will be able to make an appointment to get it. People seeking more information about the COVID-19 vaccine, you can visit the MDH website – www.health.state.mn.us/diseases/coronavirus/vaccine.html – or call 320-864-3185.

A turning point

After a challenging year of navigating this pandemic, Spors, said residents are now at a turning point of having a safe and effective vaccine available to the community — a huge step forward in the fight against this virus. The Centers of Disease Prevention and Control (CDC), Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) and McLeod County Public Health are working hard to create a plan to distribute the vaccine in a way that:

- Immunizes for impact, and maximizes immediate health benefits, reduces death and serious illness, and minimizes the harm created by COVID-19;
- Provides equitable distribution and access, making sure no procedural or structural issues impact access to the vaccine among any particular group or population. We want Minnesotans in every corner and every community to know they can trust the process, the safety, and the effectiveness of the vaccine;

- Offers transparency and sharing information as quickly as possible with Minnesotans.

Testing matters

Testing has been one way the county has worked with residents to combat COVID-19. People are encouraged to practice the three Ws — wearing a mask, washing your hands, and watching your distance.

In a press release, McLeod County noted the deaths of 41 McLeod County residents, 97 residents experienced hospitalizations, and overall McLeod County had 3,119 cases of COVID-19.

Spors encourages residents to remain resilient and continue to do their part to work toward returning to a more normal way of living and learning. To stay up to date on McLeod specific information, visit the online dashboard on the county website – www.co.mcleod.mn.us – as well as, access additional information and resources.

There was a time when people came here for a different type of harvest

By Brian Haines
McLeod County Historical Society

It was a different time in McLeod County, almost an entirely different world.

It was the late 1860s. The Civil War was over, and there was an influx of immigration into central Minnesota. Most who came to Minnesota had the intention to farm. Their dream was a house, a good crop, and to raise a family in peace. Others, however, came for adventure, and though the region may not have been as wild as it was prior to the Civil War, those seeking a life of adventure could easily find it.

One such man was named John Borden. John was originally from Indiana but came north to trap. He'd lived in the McLeod County region, on and off, for several years and was well acquainted with the land. In 1866, he located here permanently. While others looked to farm, John lived the life of a fur trapper. He spent his days running trap lines, hunting fur bearing animals, and doing his best to survive in the wild countryside.

In the 1860s though, it could seem scarce at times. Wildlife abounded by today's comparisons. The land was dotted with waterholes and lowland cattails filled with waterfowl. On the prairies were the prairie chickens that nested in the tall grasses, and in the woods were whitetail deer and the occasional bear. In the early days, the hunters would even come across a bison on occasion.

Making money

Hunting was a good way to survive, but it was trapping where men like Borden found money. Trapping had been a way to achieve wealth for decades, but by the 1860s the market bottomed out and fur held little value. That didn't stop Borden, however, as he looked to the land, and fur, as a means of wealth.

He spent a great deal of his time trapping along the border of McLeod and Renville counties. He caught mink, otter, beaver, skunks, and muskrats. He was willing to travel long distances, and at one time covered a trap line that ran for 20 miles. The main animal being trapped in the region was the muskrat, and in 1866, John Borden harvested 1,600 of them. The hides were worth 13 cents apiece in 1866 and needed to be hauled into St. Paul to receive payment.

Though men like Borden enjoyed their life in the wilderness, they still yearned for some comfort. At some point, Borden decided it was time to build a cabin. He took lumber from an old house in Plato and used it to build a small shack. It was small, but a popular place for others like Borden to stop and rest. According to stories, on one night the cabin slept eighteen people.

The era of the 19th Century survivalist/trapper in central Minnesota was short-lived. Several trappers worked the countryside in the early part of the century, but by the late 1850s, the prices of fur plummeted. Men like John Borden worked the trap lines for a few more years after that, but the world around them was changing fast. By the 1870s and 1880s, railroads began coming into the region and the wilder areas were shrinking. By the turn of the century, the landscape fur trappers lived in was all but gone. It would be a quiet end to a way of life lived by countless men of the time.

Smallpox cases pop up here and there around the countryside and in Hutchinson continually. There is not a real epidemic but every precaution should be taken. There are some whooping cough and numerous colds. East of town there seems to be a prevalence of a jaundice condition. One physician stated that it is not a serious sickness but has been unusual around here.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rickert of this village on Monday, January 10.

One of the worst dirt storms experienced in this section for many years prevailed Saturday night and Sunday. The air was filled with flying dust picked up by the fifty mile gale and this coupled with a zero temperature made the day a most miserable one.

The Brownton Fire Department was dispatched Saturday, Jan 13, at about 1:45 p.m., to the Craig and Cari Glaeser home, 11543 Sunset Circle, just west of Lake Marion, on a report of a vehicle on fire inside the home's attached garage. By the time firefighters arrived, the fire had spread to the garage. Firefighters were able to contain the fire to the garage, which sustained heavy damage in the fire. The fire did not spread to the main house.

A pickup rollover Monday afternoon resulted in Highway 212 traffic being diverted for over an hour while rescue workers extricated the driver from the vehicle. The rollover occurred at about 3:30 p.m. on Highway 212 between Major Avenue and Nature Avenue, about four miles east of Brownton.

Victory entered the camp of the local high school basketball quintet last Friday night when Windom College was vanquished, the final score reading Stewart 33, Windom 15. A good crowd attended the first home game and enthusiasm was at a high pitch throughout the contest. Stewart scored first with Hanson making the throw. From then on Windom never held the lead. At half time the locals had accumulated sixteen points to the visitors' nine.

While the acreage of the ten principal crops in 1920 was 2.8% less than in 1919, the total production was 10% more than in 1919. However, the decline in farm prices was so rapid that based on the price Dec. 1, 1920, the total value of the ten crops was only $265,980,000 based on the price Dec. 1, 1919. The Silver Lake School Board Monday turned thumbs down to a pairing proposal offered by Glencoe three weeks ago, voting 6-0 at its regular meeting to reject the plan. Teacher seniority is the biggest obstacle. Glencoe wanted to have control over the seniority list, with its teachers getting first crack at jobs. Silver Lake wants a combined list, based on the most experienced teacher, regardless of district. "It doesn't really surprise me," Glencoe Superintendent Warren Schmidt said of Silver Lake's rejection. It's like any negotiation, he explained; you take the issues one at a time and try to resolve them.

Cuchna said he wasn't shocked that he had been told to leave school if he didn't remove the signs. "I

For the past three or four weeks, the oil burning heater in the Tribune office hasn't been working just the way it should. Then it happened! Wednesday afternoon, while Harry was up on the big newspaper press, nearing the end of the weekly run, there was a large explosion and a crash. Everyone thought that the press broke down, but within the next few seconds we knew what had happened as the pipes came crashing to the floor and the whole shop was filled with soot! For a few seconds, we stood there dumbfounded and wondering what to do. We finally realized that the soot was beginning to settle on the freshly printed papers. We grabbed the ones that were ready for mailing and ran them over to the postoffice and tried to cover the rest of them with other papers. So, if you got a paper that was edged in black, we want you to know that it was purely accidental.

Girls' hoops knocks the wind out of Cylcones

By Brianna Taggart
Staff Writer

Glencoe-Silver Lake girls' basketball didn't waste any time when it hit the court running at St. Clair for its first game of the season last Friday, Jan. 15.

The Panthers' pack knocked the wind out of the Cyclones with an abundance of rebounds, a strong defense and ended the evening with a 41-point lead in the season-opener.

"I thought the girls came out with a lot of energy and we rebounded very well early, which got our running game going," Head Coach Jeff Monahan said.

The Panthers were originally slated to start the season at home against Holy Family Catholic last Thursday, Jan. 14, but after winter storm complications, the game against the Fire was postponed.

The absence of a hometown advantage couldn't stop GSL's energy though, and Monahan applauded his team for starting and continuing on a strong note.

Panthers 79, St. Clair 38

The Panthers started strong, scoring 51 points in the first half compared to the Cyclones' 19, earning themselves a 32-point lead.

"After some adjustments on defense, I thought we finished the first half outstanding," Monahan said.

The Panthers scored another 28 points in the second half and the Cyclones added another 19 points to their score. The night ended with a big win 79-38 for GSL.

"We played good defense and we were really active in the passing lanes," Coach Monahan said.

Kendall Guerrero, Miah Monahan and Mylea Monahan all scored in double figures with Guerrero ending the night with 12 points, Miah Monahan with 31 and Mylea Monahan with 14. Coach Monahan said the team is looking to have three or four girls ending each game in double figures with balanced scoring.

Belle Plaine game

The Panthers continued its season Tuesday night, Jan. 19. Scores were not available to The Chronicle at the time of publication, but Monahan said he was looking forward to playing the "very tough opponent."

"Belle Plaine is last year's No. 1 seed in sections and has a very nice team coming back," Monahan said. "I feel it should be a great game, and I'm looking forward to see how the team responds versus a very tough opponent Tuesday night."

Upcoming

The Panthers will host their first home game tomorrow, Thursday, Jan. 21, against Mound Westonka at 7 p.m.

GSL junior center Jacob Baumgarten nailed a short jump shot during practice Thursday afternoon. The junior lefthander and his teammates are looking to rebound Friday night, 7 p.m. at home, from a setback against Holy Family.

Panthers scorched in opener at Holy Family

GSL hosts Central, Waconia this week

A couple of statistics told the fans who couldn't attend Saturday's game at Holy Family all they needed to know about a 23-point loss to Holy Family in the GSL boys' basketball team's opening game.

The Panthers didn't shoot as well as Holy Family. They didn't take care of the basketball as well, committing more turnovers than the Fire, and they were out-rebounded. GSL coach Rob DeCorsey was critical of his own performance coaching via Twitter.

It all added up to a 65-42 setback against Holy Family. "We did not do many things well," DeCorsey said. "It kind of looked like a first scrimmage."

The Panthers had a chance to rebound from the setback last night, Tuesday, Jan. 19, against Central (NYA) in Glencoe. The game was played after The Chronicle went to press. The scheduled game against Annandale has been rescheduled to later in the season. Friday night, Jan. 22, 7 p.m., the Panthers will host Waconia, Tuesday, Jan. 26, 7 p.m., they'll host Watertown-Mayer. Central fell in its first game to Mayer Lutheran, 74-42.

DeCorsey is focusing more on the Panthers' performance rather than worrying about the opposition.

"We need to take care of our ourselves and worry about the things we can control on our side of the ball," he said.

Holy Family 65, Panthers 42

GSL saw the game slowly slip out of its control in the first half when the Panthers managed just 17 points. GSL trailed 28-17 at intermission. The Panthers were outscored in the second half, 37-25.

GSL made only 10 of 30 two-point and 2 of 17 three-pointers in the game. They were slightly out-rebounded, 38-32. The Fire was red hot from the floor, sinking 16 of 29 two-pointers and 8 of 27 shots from beyond the three-point line.

The tough going was a reminder the going will get tougher against live competition. GSL has been scrimmaging against itself for the past two weeks. The Panthers were thrilled to be playing against anybody else, DeCorsey said.

GSL handled Holy Family's pressure defense once it advanced the ball into the front court, he said. Its greatest challenge remains good shots in transition situations.

"The guys need to learn it's not a pickup game. You have to perform," DeCorsey said.

The Panthers' defensive struggles came while trying to help each other on defense. Players leaving their own man to help out on defense created too many open shots, he said.

"It wasn't a lack of effort. It was a matter of do your job," DeCorsey said.

Spencer Lemke and Eli Ehrke paced the Panthers with seven points apiece. Blake Mickolichuk and Mitchel Klockmann had six points each while Jackson Stifter and Jacob Christianson added four points apiece. Jaden Uecker, Jacob Baumgarten, Jordan Mickolichuk and Corey Schmidt scored six points each.

GSL's top scorer Mitchel Jaskowiak and one of its top reserves, Sawyer Kaczmarek, did not play in the game.

GSL/LP wrestlers split first matches in New Prague

The Glencoe-Silver Lake/Lester Prairie wrestling team got a good look at tough competition in its first triangular match of the season Thursday, Jan. 14 in New Prague.

The Panthers saw a big school powerhouse team that dominated the match and claimed a win.

GSL/LP didn't leave New Prague without a win, however. The Panthers claimed a victory over Chaska-Chanhassen.

The Panthers won't be back in competition until Thursday, Jan. 28, 6 p.m., at Maple River. The following night, Friday, Jan. 29, 5 p.m., GSL/LP will face Scott West and Little Falls in Belle Plaine. The Panthers will host their first match of the season Thursday, Feb. 4, 5 p.m., when Eden Prairie and Howard Lake-Waverly-Winsted come to Glencoe.

Panthers 47, Chaska-Chan 25

The Panthers took control of the match in the second half of the contest.

After the Stormhawks won the 145-pound match to take a 19-14 lead, the Panthers went on a tear, outscoring Chaska-Chanhassen, 33-6, over the next seven weight classes. In six of the final seven weight classes, the Panthers took points in three pins and two forfeited matches.

Chaska-Chan opened the match with a win at 106 pounds. GSL/LP's Dylan Bargmann won at 113 pounds, giving the Panthers a 4-3 lead. After the Stormhawks won at 120 pounds, GSL/LP's Dawson Meyer pinned his 126-pound opponent at the 1:34 mark to give the Panthers a 10-7 advantage.

GSL/LP had to forfeit the 132-pound match. The Panthers' Carter Ruschmeier won a major decision at 138 pounds to put the locals up, 14-13. Chaska-Chan won the 145-pound clash with a pin, taking a 19-14 lead and setting the stage for the Panthers' rally.

It started with 152-pounder Jace Cacka pinning his opponent at 3:29. Zachary Voelz won the 160-pound match by a 5-0 decision to give GSL/LP a 23-19 lead in the team scoring. Keegan Lemke pinned his 170-pound opponent at 1:06 and 182-pounder Aaron Higgins won by forfeit, giving the Panthers a 35-19 lead.

At 195 pounds, Jaxin Anderson won by forfeit and Carter Ziegler pinned his opponent at 220 pounds to give GSL/LP a 47-19 lead before the Stormhawks took the heavyweight match by forfeit.

New Prague 44, Panthers 27

After a close win at 103 pounds, the host Trojans dominated the competition, winning five of the next nine weight classes by pin or forfeit to take a commanding lead.

New Prague led 26-0 on the scoreboard when GSL/LP's Carter Ruschmeier won the 138-pound match by a 6-4 decision. Voelz gave the Panthers three more team points with a 5-0 decision at 160 pounds to make the team score, 38-6.

After New Prague forfeited the 170-pound match, GSL/LP's Lemke pinned his opponent, cutting the Trojans' team score advantage to 38-18. The Panthers' Anderson won the 195-pound match by a decision and Ziegler won at 220 pounds by a pin, closing out GSL/LP's scoring.

New Prague won the 285-pound match by default.

What Should I Be Thinking About?

It is hard these days not to be distracted or overwhelmed by thoughts of fear and anxiousness, especially with our upcoming election along with Covid 19 and a host of other things. There have been days I have had to just shut it all out and just get back to quieting myself down and reading Scripture. I still hear that small voice within me in which the Lord gently reminds me to practice being in His Presence and to seeking His will and listening to His voice.

So, what should we be setting our mind on in order to have peace and hear the voice of the Lord? Well, I ran across Philippians 4:8 last week in which a brother in Christ shared about putting a fence of protection around our life. Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things. Phil. 4:8.

By setting our minds on the Lord and on good and pure things, we in a sense are building a “protective fence” around our thought life, which affects all of our life, even our physical well-being. By directing our thoughts upwards, we are kept safe and it helps us filter out a lot of negative and peace-stealing thoughts. So put the first fence post up of “truth” followed by additional fence posts: honesty, purity, lovely, good report, virtue, and praise. Dig deep and place these posts solidly in your mind, and watch how your life is transformed as you make it a practice (a discipline) to think upon these things. May the Lord keep You in His perfect peace always.

The Koniska Bridge over the Crow River was built in 1904. It is a 90-foot clear span bridge with no center supports. It served farm equipment, motorists, pedestrians, anglers and more. In 1965, McLeod County commissioners designated it as a historical site.

Remembering the Koniska bridge, gristmill

By Ron Pulkrabek

The 1904 Koniska Bridge over the Crow River, located on County Road 11, three miles northeast of Biscay, was to be cut up for scrap or hopefully moved to a new location. It is a 90-foot clear span bridge with no center supports. In 1965, county commissioners designated it as a historical site. The historic bridge was replaced by a new bridge 500 feet to the south. So it sat there for 116 years for people, as an informal meeting place to remember the good-old days and drive across in their horse and buggies. The bridge was used by 12-ton steam tractors pulling threshing machines, rumbling across at top speed of 2 3/4 miles per hour. The tractor driver must have prayed during the trip over. It was later used as a single-lane crossing by cars and trucks, by pedestrians, by anglers to casually wet a line, and even by couples perhaps seeking some romance underneath.

Recording history

In 1974, Margaret Knutson, of the Hutchinson Leader interviewed four former old-timers from the Koniska area. They were glad the commissioners were saving it. She interviewed my grandmother, Clara Pulkrabek, who passed away at age 98, Helen (Pulkrabek) who passed at age 83, Carrie (Pulkrabek) who died at age 93 and her husband who lived to be 100. Sounds like a good place to live. The east end of the bridge rests on our land in the Pulkrabek name for 138 years. About 10 years ago, I found the following items in the 1904 edition of the Glencoe Enterprise. Each week, the newspaper listed what was going on in Koniska. It was an interesting gossip section. The listing included the bridge reports. April 4, 1901: In the near future, the citizens of Rich Valley will be compelled to devise a plan to raise money for at least four new bridges. In 1898, we had a promise of appropriation from the state for an iron bridge, but it proved to be a vote-catcher only. March 31, 1904: The supervisors met at Koniska last Saturday and decided on constructing an iron bridge with a 90-foot span and 12-foot approaches.

Built in three months

June 2, 1904: Pursuant to notice duly given, the bids published below were received by the Board of Supervisors of the Township of Rich Valley Wednesday, June 1st for the construction of a steel bridge to span the Crow River at a point in Section 20, in said town and the bridge to be 90 feet in length.

June 8, 1904: The contract for the new bridge was let Wednesday. The stonework abutments and grading will commence immediately.

July 21, 1904: The foundation for the new bridge spanning Crow River at Koniska began July 5. The old bridge was torn down and so teams must ford the river at a place just north of the site, where a road was cleared for that purpose.

July 28, 1904: The stone abutments for the new bridge are completed on one side. The other side is coming up fast. It is only a question of a few weeks' time before the bridge will be completed.

Sept. 8, 1904: Our bridge we have been waiting for, was completed last week. With the exception of the floor it is an all-steel structure, 90 feet in length, 16 feet wide, and 16 feet high. It is safe to say it is one of the finest bridges in the county, a fact of which the citizens of Koniska can well feel proud. The town board of supervisors met at the town site of Koniska last Monday and received bids for the construction of the grades leading to the new bridge. Anthony Wosmek was awarded the contract to be completed by Sept. 15.

The board will meet again next Saturday, 9 a.m., for the purpose of selling planks from the old bridge. Sept. 15, 1904: Hurrah, no more fording the river for our citizens. As of now, the new bridge and grades are now entirely completed for the purpose of traveling. Jos. Cacka was the first to cross it. Construction time? 103 days.

In 2020, McLeod County approved a contract to remove the bridge built in 1904. The firm from Hutchinson won the contract. The razing was delayed for fear of starting a grass fire during dry conditions.

Jan. 4, 2021: Two men using cutting torches and a helper with two small cranes attacked the 116-year-old, 90 foot, clear span, metal Koniska Bridge. By evening piles of scrap iron lay on the eastern banks of the Crow River. There goes history.

In 1970, county officials designated it as a historical site. In 2019, county officials decided it was a liability

Koniska gristmill

May 15, 1858: Koniska is a new town which has recently sprung up. The town has good waterpower, which is owned by Mr. Spencer, and he is now busily engaged in building a saw and grist mill. It is bound to be a place of good deal of movement. A 500-foot long by 10-foot high earthen dam was built. The millpond will eventually fill up with water and a controlled gating system will feed water across a water wheel to operate the mill.

Nov. 6, 1858: The new mill will be ready in about three weeks. The waterpower is destined to cause the place to really grow. Capital investment is frequently sought near waterpower.

Jan. 1, 1859: We learn today that these valuable mills are to be inaugurated today and a number of prominent citizens will be present. This is the first water mill put into operation west of Minnetonka Mills, with the exception of Kingston. We need more mills in McLeod County. Where are our capitalists?

Open in high water

July 16, 1859: We are pleased to learn that these mills, throughout the high water, have been in operation every day. This proves the dam across the Crow River is permanent and the mills will run year around.

Nov. 26, 1859: We have received from the proprietors of the Koniska Mills, a sample of meal ground that cannot be surpassed. Mr. Baker, their millwright, is the best workman in the state.

Sept. 15, 1860: Koniska Mills announces today that they can manufacture as good

By 2020, the bridge was decaying to the point the county was concerned about its stability. It had been removed from the county roads system. Last fall, the county paid Structural Specialties of Hutchinson $10,000 to raze the bridge.

white flour as any in the state. They take the following tolls: wheat 1/8 and corn 1/7.

April 24, 1873: The gristmill now rests against the bridge some 20 rods from its old site. Most of the machinery was removed before it went off with the floods and fast-moving water. The Young brothers have been trying for the last seven years to keep the mill operating, but almost every year some part of the dam needs work. They will head to two harbors to start all over again. For all the money they spent they might as well have thrown their money into the Crow River from the start.

Undercut

May 19, 1879: "DAM GONE" states the headlines. Due to high water during the spring, swirling water destroyed the apron and dug a deep hole under the dam. It appeared OK in the evening, but the following morning much destruction had taken place. A temporary dam will be put in place. The old dam cost over $2,000 three years ago.

Sept. 23, 1880: Fred Ludwig of Koniska has his new gristmill in first rate working order and is tuning out a fine grade of flour. Fred has a pretty good knowledge of the milling business and solemnly avows that no man shall go away from his mill dissatisfied. This is the last entry found.

The only remnant of the mill is the solid iron, 400-pound, five-inch diameter by 10 feet long water wheel axel. It was used as a doorstep in front of our granary. I've stepped on it many times. In 2010, I helped the present owners of the farm, Marvin and Verdella Moehring, move it to the McLeod County Historical Society Museum. It sits across a small stream west of the Museum. In 1858, how did they build this, 500 foot long by 10 feet high, with horses and walk-behind scrapprers holding two cubic feet of dirt? It must have taken 15,000 trips. Although now covered with trees and brush, parts of the earthen dam are visible on both sides of the Crow River from the new bridge on County Road 11.

Eventually, trains came through Glencoe and Silver Lake. The creamery closed in 1941. Koniska wasn't needed any more. Today, in 2021, it has a population of one person. In 1952, as a teenager, I helped my grandparents remodel the only house in Koniska they lived in for 10 years. The Koniska Cemetery has 87 souls lying under the sod. Twenty-three are Pulkrabek related.

If you visit, slow down. Don't miss the Koniska sign.

Rural Glencoe resident Ron Pulkrabek wrote this piece in October and expanded it in January, shortly before the historic bridge was initially proposed to be demolished.
