Council split on rules for decorum, doing business

By John Mueller

Editor

The schism between factions of the Glencoe City Council was on display again Monday night when the council voted 3-2 on a set of guidelines for conducting business and how councilors should treat each other and city staff.

The split vote on the proposed guidelines for operating procedures and decorum Mayor Ryan Voss brought to the council with the help of the city attorney and city staff was about the topic councilors did not unanimously agree on at the

Feb. 1 meeting.

Although the council was not asked to approve the rules of procedures/decorum guidelines, it chose to vote to accept them rather than discuss the matter in a workshop.

Councilors Paul Lemke, John Schrapp and Sue Olson voted in favor of the guidelines. Councilors Allen Robeck and Cory Neid opposed adopting them. The division in the council is the same as when it discussed conducting workshops as opposed to committee meetings. Robeck and Neid favor the workshops, less formal gatherings where all councilors may participate in a discussion as opposed to committees including two councilors making a recommendation to the full council.

Neid and Robeck said they opposed the rules because the document was overwhelmingly directed at council behavior and secondarily at how staff treats the city council.

Robeck favored bringing the document to a workshop for additional discussion. He indicated he had several questions. When City Administrator Mark Larson asked what Robeck's questions were so he could work on preparing answers Robeck declined to provide Larson his questions.

The three-page memo recommended councilors should demonstrate honesty and integrity in every action and statement, serve as a model of leadership and civility to the community, inspire confidence in city government, work for the common good and not personal interests, accept and respect decisions made by the council as a body and deliver a consistent message to the community. Council members were also encouraged to respect each other, honor the role of the mayor and his efforts and disagreements with the mayor should be stated politely and with reason.

The guidelines encourage councilors to treat staff as professionals and never publicly criticize city staff. It says the council should depend on staff to respond to concerns from citizens.

The guidelines encourage city staff to respond to questions from councilors fully and expeditiously.

McLeod County working to roll out vaccination plan

What should have been the first McLeod County Board meeting in the Martin McLeod Board Room at the new McLeod County Government Center in Glencoe, Feb. 2, was instead moved to a Zoom meeting due to COVID precautions.

A ribbon-cutting scheduled prior to Tuesday's meeting was postponed and will be rescheduled for a later date.

As the board has changed locations and formats over the last year, McLeod County Health and Human Services Director Berit Spores reported that vaccinations have been rolling out throughout the county.

The county has been working on the first priority group of health care workers, emergency medical personnel and other related personnel.

To date five closed vaccination clinics have been held for the assigned group. Later this week, clinic staff hopes to begin vaccinating local educators and daycare providers with the hopes to begin opening the eligibility to residents 65 and older soon.

They've received about 300 vaccinations. About 200 of them or for second doses and about 100 are for first doses. This is a separate track from what the hospital is getting.

Public health continues to look for ways to reach the 65-plus community as not everyone has access to computers to register online. English as a second language and transportation availability are a concern.

Discussions have taken place with Trailblazer to work on offering rides to vaccination locations at no charge and the details are being worked out.

Both public health and emergency management continue to plan for larger scale as the vaccinations become available.

Commissioners asked about the process. Spores informed the board that the second dose is scheduled during the first dose visit.

Spores said the department continues to work delinquent with the resources they have.

In other business, the commissioners:

- Approved the purchase of two 2021 Dodge Durangos and one 2021 Dodge Charger for the sheriff's office. The state bid price through Dodge of Burnsville is $34,338 each and $27,161 for the charger for a total purchase price of $95,837.00.

Six months later, their passion for social justice remains strong

About 150 people rallied together in downtown Glencoe last summer in the wake of George Floyd's death while in police custody, the Black Lives Matter (BLM) movement and to speak out against allegations of police brutality.

Laying face down on the grass on the east side of the McLeod County Courthouse, pretending their hands were handcuffed behind their backs, the protestors chanted Floyd's name in a call for social justice.

'I just wanted to kind of continue the conversation.'

Christopher Ross, Glencoe

In the wake of violence in Minneapolis, members of the community feared violence triggered by outside agitators might break out here. Police informed downtown business owners of the event. A heavy law enforcement presence in the blocks surrounding the courthouse helped maintain a sense of peace and control until a late-afternoon thunderstorm arrived, which brought the rally to an end.

People of all ages shared their stories in hopes of bringing about change for racial equality.

It's since been over six months since that protest June 2, and conversation has been fizzling out. Glencoe native and protest organizer Christopher Ross reflected back on his goals for the assembly, and while these discussions have slowed down, the rally prompted more than he expected.

A current law student, Ross expected five to 10 people to stand on a corner for the peaceful protest late last spring, but it attracted dozens more. Ross even had 10 to 20 people reach out to him on Facebook wanting to learn more about the issue afterwards.

"Honestly, just having 10 people reach out is a huge step in this," Ross said. "It's just one person at a time, so having a few people reach out and kind of realize where we are coming from was an important part of what I was trying to do."

A social media spark

Ross started reaching out to organize a protest on Facebook after George Floyd died and that's when he gained the help of Danielle Scott, another Glencoe resident. Ross organized the event while Scott promoted it and introduced speakers.

"I felt very strongly about showing our community that we will back the BLM movement locally even if some didn't like it," Scott said. "We are not against local police, but we Glencoe native Christopher Ross organized the Black Lives Matter protest in Glencoe last June. Over six months later, he said conversation has slowed down as people's focuses shifted to the presidential election. Ross is currently in his final semester of law school at University of St. Thomas School of Law in Minneapolis.

McLeod County Sheriff's Deputies blocked off traffic on East 11th Street at North Baxter Avenue as police and deputies responded to a mental health call on the 200 block of East 11th Street. The call came in around 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 28. After a standoff, occupants were safely removed from the house and a man was transported to the hospital. There were no injuries reported in the event.

Agencies achieve successful outcome

A call for medical help turned into a standoff with Glencoe police and county sheriff's deputies Thursday night.

Police were called to the 200 block of East 11th Street Thursday, Jan. 28, at 6:26 p.m. The department labeled the incident a mental health call.

According to messages aired on the county's law enforcement channel, police were initially concerned for the safety of children in the basement of the house. Audio of police planning a strategy to extricate the children from the house safely was heard via the scanner. Glencoe Police Chief Tony Padilla said the agencies working together at the scene achieved a successful outcome where nobody was hurt and nobody was arrested. A man was transported to the hospital, he said.

Audio of law enforcement movement, staging and planning efforts to resolve the standoff peacefully was heard online and via emergency responder scanners tracking until they switched to an encrypted channel.

Streets in the area were blocked off. Around 7:45 p.m., the county's armored command vehicle arrived at the scene.

Padilla declined requests for additional information on how officers achieved the successful outcome in the high-visibility incident.

Thursday night via email, he addressed a request for information on the incident.

"The sheriff's office and the PD were dispatched to a medical in the area of 11th and Baxter. No arrests were made and the incident ended without injury or harm to anyone involved."

Monday, he said the chief declined a request for details on how the incident was resolved peacefully. He said he was limited to what he could say because the department deemed the incident a medical.

Glencoe inviting citizens to online workshops on comprehensive plan

Glencoe residents interested in participating in the formulation of the city's proposed comprehensive plan can learn more about the plan and process at an upcoming workshop Thursday, Feb. 18.

Two identical virtual public workshops are scheduled from 1 to 2 p.m. and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., a schedule the city hopes will facilitate greater participation for residents with work schedules. The workshops will be held via Zoom. To participate, participants should register in advance at <https://bit.ly/Glencoe1pm> for the 1 p.m. session and <https://bit.ly/Glencoe630pm> for the 6:30 p.m. session.

workshop's facilitated activities will begin promptly at the scheduled start time.

Once approved, the comprehensive plan is intended to guide Glencoe's evolution over the next 20 years, and will include recommendations for land use, housing, business development, parks, transportation, and downtown vitality, among others. The plan's completion is expected for October 2021.

The city says community input is important for guiding the future of Glencoe. In addition to the workshops, the planning process includes opportunities for residents to contribute their ideas and comments. Because of the COVID-19 pandemic, current activities are online-only, but include a wide variety of tools and opportunities, including:

- A project website at www.glencoeplan.org with information and opportunities to comment;
- An online survey, available at the website, to collect ideas for the plan's vision;
- An interactive online map, also available at the website, to collect issues and ideas for improvement.

The plan's online virtual public workshop will offer opportunities for residents to learn about the plan, ask questions, and provide valuable guidance through fun and interactive online activities and questions. A brief presentation will be followed by visioning exercises that are against systemic racism."

Less online exchanges

Ross saw how much social media helped spread the word and decided to create a Facebook group called McLeod County: Continuing the Conversation. There are about 300 members and it was pretty active throughout the summer. Discussion has since slowed down.

"I'm sad the Facebook group isn't active anymore," Ross said. "I didn't think it would be for too long. I just wanted to kind of continue the conversation."

Ross had the support of the people who knew about and experienced the issue, but said it was difficult to introduce it to people who don't actively see it. He did notice some book clubs about systemic racism start around that time though.

"It's hard to tell them what's going on and really make momentum," Ross said.

Another heavy topic

The COVID-19 pandemic and presidential election overshadowed the Black Lives Matter conversation, Ross said.

"Between the election and COVID, it was hard to introduce another topic to this town and the nation in general, but this has been an underlying topic for centuries now in this country, so it never really goes away," Ross said.

"People just lose interest and go towards something else."

Ross said he has heard good things about Glencoe police and doesn't have a problem with them either.

"The Glencoe police chief and the county sheriff (Jim Raiter and Scott Rehmann) were kind of sitting out at the protest the whole time," Ross said. "They just made the rounds talking to people and I was really appreciative of that, but that can't be said for all police departments."

Ross didn't have much of a plan for the protest other than prompting conversations with at least one person, and he is comfortable being able to see it through.

"I guess I didn't really know where it was going to go and what was going to happen," Ross said. "My main goal was just to raise awareness, and I think, to some extent, that happened."

After years of planning, Brownton, area residents welcome Dollar General to town

By Brianna Taggart

Staff Writer

Products fill the shelves wall to wall in the store as people roam the aisles, eyeing the products.

Dollar General finally opened its doors on the corner of Highway 212 and South Fifth Avenue in Brownton last week, offering the community a wider selection of goods.

"We needed something in Brownton, so it's nice to have something local for us and anyone on (Highway) 212," Jane Tongen, one of its customers Saturday, said.

Dollar General opened Wednesday, Jan. 27, for a half day and had its first full business day Thursday, Jan. 28.

The first day saw about 100 customers, and about 50 people who stopped in just to say "hi," according to store manager Aric Jensen.

"It's been pretty steady since then," Jensen said. "They're really appreciative that we came in."

Positive responses

Jensen's been hearing a positive response from customers and many have told him, "I'm surprised you have this much in the store."

Dave Knick visited Dollar General Saturday, Jan. 30, with his family and he was also shocked by the amount of products.

"I think it's really nice," Knick said. "It's a bigger selection than I expected. It's nice to be able to buy something here, especially milk."

He lives in Brownton so he said he's looking forward to having the new store around when he just needs to pick up something small.

Tongen had a similar sentiment and likes that she doesn't have to leave town when she needs something.

"It's a business that feels local even if it's part of a big chain," Tongen said.

'Like a mini Walmart'

Carolyn Heil has lived in Brownton for 20 years and now she's one of the store's three sales associates, all from Brownton. The store is planning to hire a total of six to 10 employees.

"Brownton needed something like this," Heil said. "It's amazing what we carry. It's like a mini Walmart."

There's a self checkout too and Brownton's one of the few Dollar Generals that has that, according to Heil.

On top of everything, Heil's enjoyed getting to see the customers.

"We've had some regulars that come in every day already," Heil said. "That's the fun part. I recognize a lot of people that come through here and it's nice to see people like that."

The team of employees is planning to take things steady for a while now and settle into the community, according to Jensen.

They're ready to invest in the town as the building's total value is $723,000. It also has a new construction permit from the city.

People can visit the store daily from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

GRH receives 300 doses of vaccine for healthcare workers, elderly residents

Glencoe Regional Health (GRH) received 300 doses of the Moderna COVID-19 vaccine this week for healthcare workers and patients ages 65 years and older.

At this time, they are vaccinating a targeted priority group of their most high-risk patients for COVID-19, as identified by their medical staff, according to a GRH press release. Patients will be called directly to schedule their appointment. GRH is not scheduling vaccinations for other members of the public. The hospital is not accepting walk-in appointments, and there is no option to pay for early access to receive the vaccine early.

Because of the very limited supply of vaccine that GRH has received, the staff is not creating a waitlist at this time.

While the Minnesota Department of Health has not given GRH a timeframe on when they might receive another shipment of the vaccine, GRH will keep their patients and community notified when they have more information.

Available elsewhere?

People with the opportunity to receive the vaccine elsewhere should take advantage of it. Additional information on the vaccine is available on the Minnesota Department of Health's website – www.health.state.mn.us – for additional vaccination opportunities.

Minnesotans who wish to receive the vaccine will have the opportunity to do so, in time. Because of the limited supplies of the COVID-19 vaccine available at this stage, GRH asks the public to be patient and wait for the vaccine to be distributed.

Please continue to protect yourself and others by wearing a mask, social distancing, washing your hands, and staying home if you are ill.

For updates on the COVID-19 vaccination distribution to the public, visit GRH's website – grhsonline.org – or the hospital's Facebook page.

GSL Knowledge Bowl continues its winning streak, earns top places in meets

By Brianna Taggart

Staff Writer

Glencoe-Silver Lake students went head-to-head against 14 other schools last Monday, Jan. 25, and continued its winning streak by coming out on top.

A total of 31 teams competed at the virtual meet hosted by Renville County West, and it was GSL's "The Boys" team that earned first place. The team consisted of Captain Paul Sievert, Nathan Warner, Eli Kuehn and Kobe Boozieke.

That was the same team that won the regional meet last spring and was going to represent GSL at the state meet. However, it was canceled and "The Boys" didn't get to compete in that opportunity, according to Co-Head Coach Eric Anderson.

"Seeing them get back together and have a successful meet was really a nice moment for the coaches," Anderson said. "Going forward, we have to look at what will make our team as successful as possible, but I don't think we've seen the last of that group."

GSL also came in fifth place with a team consisting of Riley Schuth, Austin Brewton, Cade Herrmann and Frank Jilek.

Staying in top spots

GSL continued its season this Monday, Feb. 1, with a 40-team meet hosted by Winona against 19 other schools.

It didn't take first place but managed to still hold some of the top places.

"GSL had an impressive showing with three teams in the top six spots," Anderson said.

All six teams placed in the top 15 places.

A senior team of Captain Paul Sievert, Eli Kuehn, Riley Schuth and Cade Herrmann led the way with a fourth place finish.

They finished just one point behind Marshall's third place finish. GSL stayed very close behind its fourth place team by scoring one point less.

A young team of Jesse Dahlke, Caleb Lindeman, Brooklyn Kasella and Sawyer Guerrero finished in fifth place.

The Panthers will have its next virtual meet Monday, Feb. 8, at 6 p.m.

GSL high school health class offers students will have chance to 'Know the Truth'

Message in class presented online

By John Mueller

Editor

He's not terribly different than students at Glencoe-Silver Lake. He just wants to make sure they don't take the same road he did.

And if they have started abusing drugs and alcohol, he wants them to know help is available.

Sam graduated from Holy Family Catholic School about eight years ago. He was a good student, a member of the school's football and ice hockey teams and went to college. Somewhere along the way, drugs took control of his choices.

Today at 26, Sam is a recovering addict. He works with Know the Truth, an arm of Minnesota Adult & Teen Challenge, an organization that helps young people and adults working to overcome drug and alcohol addiction. Sam and Elle Mark, a Know the Truth staffer, will present information and Sam's story virtually to GSL students in Taylor Jones' health class Friday, Feb. 5.

The evidence-based presentation will focus on the use of alcohol, vaping, marijuana and prescription medications. The presentation is intended to de-glamorize addiction, Mark said.

"Know the Truth is a great organization because they are targeting teens' addiction issues head-on," Jones said. "They care about the person throughout the rehabilitation process. We utilize them as an awareness tool in hopes that the education can assist students in making better decisions about alcohol and drug use by saying no due to the consequences that others have experienced and are willing to be transparent about through the Know the Truth presentation."

Sober for 18 months, Sam is working to make sure no one needs his services. He hopes his story will help students understand the impacts and potential dangers of drug use and make sound decisions.

"I had every reason not to turn into a drug addict," Sam said. "I grew up and thought I was really normal, whatever that is."

His hope is that the presentation and resources Know the Truth have available to people in need will get them to start talking about improving their lives. Sam knows getting people to begin that conversation is both difficult and important.

"If we can get a kid to open up, that's a win for us," he said.

Opinions

The bill will come due

Our view: We need a plan

Back in the mid-1970s, a high school civics teacher in St. Paul sarcastically claimed the federal government will never actually pay off the federal debt, so why worry about it. Run it up, he said.

On June 30, 1976, treasurydirect.gov said the federal debt was at $640 billion. It had grown to $5.6 trillion by Sept. 30, 1999 and today is estimated to be at $3.2 trillion for 2020, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

A recent letter dozens of U.S. House Democrats sent to President Biden asked him to consider monthly stimulus checks to Americans economically hurt by the pandemic. A Forbes poll indicated 82 percent of Americans favor monthly relief checks.

We're not here to debate whether the size of checks to help Americans hurt by the pandemic is adequate or whether the checks should be issued annually, quarterly or monthly.

The Congress faces an array of policy choices as it confronts a daunting budgetary situation. At 14.9 percent of gross domestic product (GDP), the deficit in 2020 was the largest it has been since the end of World War II, according to CBO. Much of that deficit stemmed from the 2020 coronavirus pandemic and the government's actions in response. We know people are hurting and help is needed.

Our question is, how will we eventually pay for all this unbudgeted spending? CBO projects that if current laws governing taxes and spending generally remained unchanged, federal debt held by the public would first exceed 100 percent of gross domestic product (GDP) in 2021 and would reach 107 percent of GDP, its highest level in the nation's history, by 2023, according to the CBO – www.cbo.gov Dec. 9.

We believe Congress and President Biden must eventually begin to address the growing deficit. Naturally, they will disagree.

We make no claim to how deficit reduction should be addressed. We'll save that for the economic policy wonks and the politicians. Obviously, revving up the United States' economic engine requires controlling and ultimately defeating the spread of the pandemic. Making sure all Americans are vaccinated is our first priority.

But it would make sense to determine how to address our national debt before the bill comes due.

Letters: Cite your sources

Perhaps you've noticed the letters to the editor in the past few weeks. We've asked writers to cite the sources they're using to make their claims.

The intent is not to make letters from readers read like a school term paper, but rather to bring them more credibility.

During this past political season, we've seen letters to the editor making claims that some might find mind-numbing and downright unbelievable. We will do our best to make sure claims made will be at the very least supported by a source.

The notion, "well everybody knows that" won't quite cut it any more. Nobody knows everything, even in an era where the Internet provides an array of information ranging from the gospel truth to rubbish depending on your point of view.

We were especially impressed with a letter last week that pointed out a media rating service – www.allsides.com/media-bias/media-bias-ratings – pointing out the biases of various media services. It shows there are wildly liberal and mind-numbingly conservative media services out there. Read and believe what you want, but at least know where it is coming from.

We cherish letters to the editor on all topics of local interest. Sadly, it's too easy for some people to vent using an anonymous name online with no credible sources to support their point of view.

We hope you'll write often. We just wanted readers and writers to understand our approach to make letters better.

Letter to the editor

He takes issue with GOP's math, perception of reality

To the editor,

Glenn Gruenhagen's Jan. 20 words to this newspaper was embarrassing.

As a former District 18B constituent, I realize it might be difficult for others to speak up to this madness, as Glenn captured 71 percent of that vote in the November election, according to election results from the Minnesota Secretary of State. So I applaud those who recently have and question those who remain silent and still support this man.

Glenn said an earlier opinion piece by Rich Glennie was not well researched or factual. Funny stuff, coming from your local conspiracy theorist who still claims Joe Biden didn't win the 2020 presidential election. Besides that logic being dangerous, as results from the Jan. 6 insurrection effort at the U.S. Capitol showed, Glenn didn't do his homework on this one.

Glenn says there's no possible way Biden received 14 million more votes than Barack Obama did in 2012 (it was actually 15 million). Glenn is apparently no mathematician. According to the Bipartisan Policy Center (BPC) in Washington, D.C., and fact-checked with similar figures from the U.S. Census Bureau, in 2012, there were just over 222 million registered voters, with an estimated 58 percent turnout, as about 129 million voters cast ballots. Obama received about 66 million; Mitt Romney got 61 million. Others picked up the rest.

In 2020, the BPC says there was almost 17 million more registered voters in America, and almost 67 percent turned out in November, casting well over 159 million ballots. People on both sides of the political aisle were impassioned to vote. And so, Glenn, that's an increase of more than 30 million ballots.

Biden received about 15 million of those new voters; Donald Trump got about 13 million of those. Third-party candidates picked up the rest.

Now, that seems pretty logical, doesn't it? Nope, says Gruenhagen. Not only does Glenn say it couldn't have happened, he continues to aspire to the same conspiracy theories and illogical arguments of not only Trump, but of such far-right extremists as Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene (R-Georgia), the Proud Boys, the Epoch Times and QAnon.

Not only that, Glenn's words citing "the hatred and violel of Democratic leaders" and calling efforts by the Bidens as "criminal financial scams" are his freedom of speech right, but it's just wrong. That madness has no place in the halls of the Minnesota State Capitol. It's shameful.

And then Glenn has the audacity to tell local Democrats that "your party has left you." No, Glenn. You have been part of a far-right, ultra-radical conservative movement that has left the Republican Party of Arne Carlson and Dave Durenberger. The part of Trump -- your party -- has left the GOP.

Glenn, you have contributed to the dysfunction of government, you've continued to challenge this nation's most sacred oath and traditions, and your efforts have no place in a civil society.

I'm a Democrat, proud of it.

But certainly, there has to be a Republican more worthy for this post.

St. Peter

We must find the way to once again begin moving forward

By Lee H. Hamilton

With the handoff of power from one president to another, we enter this new phase of our national life in deep distress. We are polarized, struggling to communicate reasonably with one another, and seemingly unable to find common ground on basic issues.

Yet the path forward is neither new nor, really, difficult. We all know what needs to happen. We just need to do it.

To heal as a nation, we need to return to our traditional ways of doing business. We need to rediscover our skills at negotiation and compromise. We must rekindle our understanding that many people contribute to our progress as a nation. Perhaps more than anything, we need to reassure ourselves that we have the ability to solve our problems. We have done it in the past.

We can do it again.

I count myself among those who believe that President Trump's misconduct should not be ignored – that healthy democracies hold public officials accountable for their actions and do not just sweep them under the rug in the name of moving on. At the same time, we badly need to focus on the tasks of governing. And by "we," I mean all of us. We each bear responsibility for making our own little corner of the country work.

This means that we resolve our differences without resorting to violence or trying to overthrow the system. Instead, we need to work together to resolve our differences. We want our representatives to disagree on policy grounds – not because of where they live or what they look like – and then negotiate, legislate, and find a way forward.

Civility must return

The truth is, we cannot solve our problems without talking to each other – and talking and talking and talking. We need leaders who are skilled and experienced in the arts of compromise and consensus building. And we need citizens who expect their elected representatives – and the media they consume – to level with them, explain the facts, repudiate conspiracy theories, and illuminate workable policies for a complex, ever-changing country.

We face tough problems. Americans do not expect miracles, but they do expect their leaders to work together to solve them. That is how we move forward. We have a chance to revitalize our democracy by showing that it can work to improve the lives of all Americans, regardless of their beliefs. We have done it before. We can do it again.

A 47-year-old Stewart man died of burns suffered at his home about 5 hours before his body was found Saturday. Raymond Simons, a life-long resident of Stewart, was found dead about 5 p.m. in his home above the Moritz Bros. Implement Co. on Stewart's main business street. County Coroner Dr. C. W. Truesdale of Glencoe said he died of burns which covered almost 100 percent of his body. Simons was wearing a synthetic fabric jacket, the coroner said, but how it was ignited is not known. "He got to the sink and put the fire out," Dr. Truesdale said, "but it was too late. He slid down there and that's where he was found." The only fire damage done to the living quarters was to the linoleum which has some burned areas, he said. The Stewart Fire Department was not notified of the fire until after the body was found.

According to information provided by the Buffalo Lake-Hector News-Mirror, the Buffalo Lake Fire Department was dispatched just before 6 p.m. to the Norm Rogers and Sheila Kane residence on 760th Street southwest of Buffalo Lake, after the family reported the fire. All family members escaped injury. The second story of the house was gutted by the fast-spreading blaze, and extensive damage resulted on the main floor from a combination of fire, smoke and water.

Dear Mother, Dad and All,

As I haven't had time to write sooner, I thought I'd better let you know what I'm up to now. It seems like I'll never settle down, doesn't it. I wonder if you could guess what my new address is, rather what it stands for. Well, right now I'm in "Camp Calas", France. We're moving out quite soon though. Going to a town not far from here. Guess I might as well tell you what I can about what we are and what our job is. The truth is I can't tell you very much except that we are a "Grave Registration Outfit". As far as I know we look up the graves of all American Soldiers buried in Europe (France, Germany, Italy, Sicily) and stuff like that there. We will live in semi-trailers. Then as they get the "dope", it will be recorded and PW's will dig them up (if in Germany) and move them, to whatever the regulations are of the American soldiers lying in enemy countries.

Panthers girls' hoops tops Dragons, Royals

By Brianna Taggart
Staff Writer

Glencoe-Silver Lake girls' basketball had difficult games ahead of them last week as conference play started, but they pulled through and conquered both.

"Really proud of the girls for going 2-0 last week vs. two very good teams in Watertown and Litchfield," Head Coach Jeff Monahan said.

The team started their journey at Watertown-Mayer High School Tuesday, Jan. 26, which Monahan mentioned as one of the top teams in the conference and section. With a solid win, the Panthers dethroned the Royals.

Panthers 71, WM 58

GSL had a difficult first half with rebounding but came back stronger in the second.

"We got beat up pretty good in the first half, but I was really proud of the second half effort on rebounding," Monahan said.

Monahan believed Miah Monahan had 11 rebounds and Teagan Hansch had 10 throughout the night.

While rebounds may have been the team's weakness, their shooting skills were their strength. Kendall Guerrero and Mylea Monahan each hit big three-pointers in the last minutes of the game.

"We played very good defense vs. Watertown, and I thought we rebounded the ball better in the second half," Coach Monahan said.

The Panthers ended the night with a 13-point lead and won 71-58.

Panthers 59, Litchfield 50

The Panthers hosted the Litchfield Dragons last Thursday, Jan. 28, for a close battle between the two.

The first half ended with GSL having just a mere two-point lead, 31-29. The fight to the finish didn't let up though. The Panthers and Dragons were tied 50-50 with 3:30 left in the game until GSL girls upped the score around the final minute mark, earning themselves a 59-50 win.

Monahan thought the girls hurried some offensive possessions after GSL would take a four to six-point lead and then struggled to get back and set its defense. He thought his team played pretty good in its half court offense against Litchfield.

"Litchfield is one of the top defending teams in the conference and area," Monahan said. "I thought we did a nice job protecting the ball and running defense. The kids are battling and that is all a coach can ask. The effort is there and we will keep working."

Miah Monahan led the team last week in scoring, rebounding and assists. Kendall Guerrero had an "outstanding week knocking shots down from the outside," according to Monahan. Teagan Hansch also had a strong week with leading the team's defense, rebounds and steals.

Monahan expected a tough game at New London-Spicer Tuesday, Feb. 2. Scores were not available to The Chronicle at the time of publication.

He doesn't know what to expect from Howard Lake-Waverly-Winsted this week since they're new to its conference but he said the team will be "ready to go" this Thursday.

GSL's Emma Malz put up a shot in the second half against Litchfield Thursday night. Malz and the Panthers used a late run to top the Dragons, 59-50. Malz scored four points Tuesday, Jan. 26, in a GSL win at Watertown-Mayer.

Medford 43, Panthers 30

The Panthers had an uphill battle against Medford in the Jan. 28 match. GSL never led in the competition.

GSL/LP's first points came when Medford forfeited the 120-pound match. Carter Ruschmeier's pin in the 138-pound match pulled the Panthers to within seven at 19-12.

Voelz won at 152, pinning his opponent at the 3:24 mark to pulled GSL/LP to within five points at 23-18.

Medford forfeited the 195- and 220-pound matches.

Panthers 38, Stewartville 37

GSL/LP's lone team win of the week came in the opening round of the Jan. 29 triangular in Goodhue. The Panthers built a big lead and then hung on to defeat Stewartville.

Down 16-0, GSL/LP's first points came via a forfeit. Carter Ruschmeier cut the deficit in half with a big win. Cacka won at 145 pounds and Voelz took the 152-pound match with a pin. GSL/LP took the lead, 26-22, when Logan Lambrecht won the 160-pound match by pin at the 2:35 mark.

Aaron Higgins gave the Panthers a 10-point lead, 32-22, when he pinned his 170-pound opponent at the 2:43 mark. Lemke's pin at 182 proved to be the difference-maker. It gave the Panthers a 38-22 lead as GSL/LP forfeited the last two matches.

Goodhue 47, Panthers 21

GSL/LP couldn't dig itself out of a 26-0 hole after Goodhue won points in the first five matches.

Carter Ruschmeier put the Panthers on the scoreboard with a 12-7 decision at 138 pounds. Cacka won the 145-pound match by major decision and Voelz pinned his opponent at 152 pounds.

GSL/LP's only other wins came when Lemke won at 170 pounds and Carter Ziegler took the 220-pound match.

GSL gymnastics falls short in first meet against Delano

By Brianna Taggart
Staff Writer

Panthers' gymnastics jumped into its first meet of the season at Delano Friday, Jan. 29, and while GSL hung in there for each event, the Panthers fell short.

The Delano Tigers beat Glencoe-Silver Lake, 133.2 to 119.95, at the dual meet. Head Coach Kim Hahn didn't have her eyes on the scores though. She wanted this meet to help the girls get comfortable with performing at meets.

"I was just expecting the first meet to just get the first-meet jitters out of the way," Hahn said. "Performing new routines with new skills for the season can be nerve wracking on everyone."

Up next:

It's "the best feeling" when they hit the routines and skills, but she's just happy to be in meet season again.

Top performers

Marissa Greeley had strong performances and earned first place on the vault with a 9.125 score. She also came in second place on the floor with a score of 9.05 and came in third place on the beam with an 8.0 score.

Greeley came in third place in the all-around results with 33.1 points behind Delano's Avery Lommel's 35.075 points and Delano's Jenna Kuelbs' 33.875 points.

Hahn was proud of the entire varsity team and said "all five girls were top performers." Four of the team's five scores contributed to the overall team score.

"We saw personality and energy," Hahn said. "Amplitude and execution skills are always something that can be improved on in every routine as well as cleaner form."

GSL has its first home meet of the season this Friday, Feb. 5, so the team is ready to keep working on its execution and amplitude for less deductions in the routines.

Litchfield 50, Panthers 47

The Panthers couldn't maintain a 47-46 lead in the final seconds of the Thursday, Jan. 28 game. They saw Litchfield use a three-pointer and a free-throw to claim the win.

The Panthers were challenged by Litchfield's controlling the ball and deliberate pace. GSL held a 30-28 lead at halftime. But the Panthers managed only 17 second-half points. The Panthers' were hampered by a 3-for-23 shooting effort beyond the three-point line.

Jaskowiak paced GSL with 18 points, 10 of which came in the second half. Uecker added eight points and Jacob Christianson had 10. Blake Mickolich scored four points for the Panthers. Lemke chipped in three points while Sawyer Kaczmarek and Mitchel Klockmann chipped in two points each.

GSL's one-act play troupe advances 'Everyman' a step from state festival

With a solid performance this week, Glencoe-Silver Lake High School's one-act play, "Everyman," could be on the road to the state one act play festival.

Figuratively, that is.

The state festival will be a virtual event this year.

GSL's one-act troupe will make a bid for a state berth this week in the sectional competition. The group finished second Saturday in the sub-section competition behind Howard-Lake-Waverly-Winsted's presentation of "Tuna Fish Eulogy."

Rather than submit the virtual presentation it sent to the sub-sectional competition, GSL plans to work on its presentation this week virtually and then put together another presentation for submission at the sectional competition, said director Pat Hiltner. Teams will be notified Saturday on the results.

The top team from each section advance to the state festival.

The modern translation of "Everyman" by Lindsay Price is set in medieval times. The main character, "Everyman" is called by death. Unwilling to accept his fate, "Everyman" considers all the facets of his life. Looking at his life, "Everyman" looks at his friends, family, goods and riches, good deeds, strength and knowledge as he tries to justify his way to heaven.

In the end, "Everyman" comes to the realization he has hasn't made the best use of his life and confesses his sins, an acknowledgment that gets him into heaven.

The GSL troupe includes senior Devin Everding as "Everyman." Other cast members playing multiple parts in the timed presentation include Emma Petersen, Jacob Paul, Sara Cross, Trevor Kirchoff, Ashton La-Plante and Lucia Beste-Zehnder. The cast is receiving tech from Wendy Berrera.

Comments from judges at the sub-sectional competition included compliments on acting and presentation, facial reactions, the energy of the characters and use of pacing, Hiltner said.

"One judge wrote, "Bravo to you for taking on a virtual performance."

GSL is working to set up a virtual performance of the one-act play. A date will be announced once details on rights and royalties can be worked out, Hiltner said.

Weather Corner

By Jake Yurek

Winter is coming; winter is here.

We'll finally get a chunk of the coldest air in North America to break off and come our way. To date, we've been extremely lucky, so we are due. The week started off great, with above-normal temperatures, but as we progress, the impending doom of the Arctic will inch closer and finally slam through Thursday. Highs Friday may only get into the single digits with highs Saturday struggling to get above zero. Sunday's high temperatures probably won't get above zero.

Lows will get into the teens below zero with a steady 10-plus mph wind, so wind chills will be an issue. I'm assuming we'll be seeing some weather alerts relating to the cold so stay tuned. Along with the cold push of air, there will be a storm system that gets going over us. It probably won't get itself completely together until after it passes us, but there will be a chance of some accumulating snow for just about everyone. It might be warm enough for southern Minnesota, at the start, to mix in some rain so pay attention to more up-to-date forecasts.

If it decides to get going sooner, we may see a bit more but it'll be somewhat moisture starved. After the low gets itself together over the Great Lakes, it's forecast to go straight north and sit between there and Hudson Bay. This means we'll see some moderating temperatures next week but no big warm-up as the Arctic cold will be close enough to continue pumping fresh cold air towards us.

In this type of pattern, we tend to also see quick small bouts of fluffy snow every now and again, so it appears like we'll finally get some winter. Happy February everyone; bundle up.

Mit dobrý weekendem Mit dobrý vikend

Wednesday night: Lows, 24-32; clouds / mix.

Thursday: Highs, falling, lows -3 to 3; mix early / snow then cold and breezy.

Friday: Highs, 8-14, lows, -6 to 0; mostly clear.

Saturday: Highs, 0-6, lows, -20 to -10; clear / cold.

Sunday: Highs, -6 to 0; clear, cold.

Weather Quiz: What is an Alberta clipper?

Last week's question: What are some of February's weather extremes?

Answer to last week's question: Highest temperature, 64 degrees (Feb. 26, 1896); lowest temperature, -33 degrees (Feb. 9, 1899); most precipitation, 1.90 inches (Feb. 24, 1930), most snowfall, 11.8 inches (Feb. 20, 2011). Average high by the end of the month is back up to 34 degrees.

Remember: I make the forecast, not the weather.

"Miracles and More Miracles"

Miracles happen around us all the time. Most go unseen. Many are desired, especially to solve the most difficult and tragic moments of our lives. Miracle solutions are most sought after when we struggle with health issues, wealth issues, and family challenges. The Bible assures us that the Lord works His miracles each and every day to sustain us in heart, body, mind and, most importantly, spirit.

The Epiphany season is devoted to "manifestations" of our Savior in His service as our Divine Prophet, manifestations in which "He revealed Himself by word and deed", that is, by His preaching and by His miracles, to be the Son of God and the Redeemer of the world. And so, Jesus is manifested to us especially in the Gospel narratives that, for the most part, center upon His miracles.

The purpose of Christ's miracles recorded in the Holy Bible is clear and indisputable: "These are written that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life through His Name" (John 20:31), the most salutary purpose of all. For His miracles have, for our sakes, validated Jesus of Nazareth not only as "the Mighty God" but as "the Prince of Peace," (Isaiah 9:6), "the Holy One of Israel, [our] Savior" (Isaiah 43:3). The record of His miracles has thus been made a functional part of the Gospel message, "the power of God unto salvation," through which the Holy Spirit operates in our hearts to "make [us] wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus" (II Timothy 3:15).

May we therefore treasure the holy record of our Savior's miracles, value the manifestation of His glory to us each and every day, cling to the validation of Him as our anointed Redeemer, and ever confide in the forgiveness of all our sins by virtue of His perfect vicarious atonement!

Cub Scout Pack & Scouts BSA Troop 352 serve the Glencoe-Silver Lake School District

The Cub Scout program is for Kindergarten-5th grade boys and girls who may join at any time. Each year our pack holds a number of events, including: Pine Wood Derby, Camp-in, Blue and Gold Ceremony, Cubmobile Run, among others. The pack also does community service projects each year like holding food drives for the McLeod County Food Shelf. Dens for each age group have their own additional activities and meetings. The highlight of the year for most boys is going to resident camp in the summer. The boys have a ball and learn lots at the camp. They leave with great memories. Scouting has been billed as "A Game with a Purpose." Our pack works to live up to that billing by teaching our kids great values while they're having fun.

The Scouts BSA Program is for boys and girls in 6th grade up through age 17. Glencoe currently has a boy Troop, but look forward to starting a girl Troop as interest rises. The program achieves the BSA's objectives of developing character, citizenship, and personal fitness. Scouts are trained to lead their own meetings and to plan and execute outings and activities. They also actively participate in leading many activities for our Cub Scouts program. Camping is a focus and highlight for Scouts BSA.

If you'd like your son or daughter to benefit by being a part of scouting or if you'd like to help make an even better program for our
